

My talk will address plural predications and their aspects. In particular I want to take a look at relative predications involving plurals like 'the group as a whole' or 'John and Mary as a couple' vs. 'John and Mary individually'. I will investigate whether an aspect based account for relative predications, which is well motivated for singular predications, works for predications as well.